FOR MILADY

v Frédérique Constant's new Junior Ladies Collection is designed specifically for girls between the ages of 12 and 16. But we have a sneaking feeling that we'll be seeing these models on older wrists soon. There are three quartz models to choose from, available on a steel bracelet and a selection of satin straps. But here's why we think these watches will be popular: The caseback of each watch has been designed so that it can be easily engraved with a personal message. It's the perfect gift!

PLUMED AFFAIR

> As Chanel fans know, the plume was a major theme in Coco Chanel's first 1932 high-jewellery collection, Bijoux de Diamants. Come July, Chanel's new Plumes de Chanel collection will make its way to Singapore – making us the first in South-east Asia to be graced with the pieces. Keep a special look-out for a sensational oversized brooch, which can be draped over the shoulder, worn as a diadem or pinned to wherever you desire.

While in Cannes

A quick round-up of our favourite celebrity and bijoux pairings seen at this year's Cannes International Film Festival.

KAROLINA KURKOVA

Former Victoria's Secret Angel Kurkova knows she doesn't need any help to garner her share of attention. That's why the natural stunner has kept things elegant by pairing her Armani Privé gown with statement Cartier pieces including these Agrafes earrings you see here.

TANG WEI

Chinese actress Tang Wei was in Cannes for the premiere of her martial-arts movie, Wu Xia, but she exuded nothing but feminine charm on the red carpet. Looking picture-perfect in a Roberto Cavalli gown, she topped her demure look with Chanel jewellery, including this Camelia Brodé necklace.

ALEXA CHUNG

Fashion's very own "It" girl has done it again. While everyone hit the red carpet in gowns to die for, Alexa Chung kept it simple yet tasteful with a vintage Balenciaga frock. Not that she needed to worry about under-dressing — with Chopard's 80-carat brown-yellow diamond pendant around her neck.
