

GALLERY OF LOVE

^ Barely a year since launching its whatmakeslovetrue.com website in celebration of love, Tiffany & Co. has introduced a new photo gallery to the site where couples can submit their personal photographs from a computer or the site's iPhone App. The gallery is aptly named "Love in Pictures" and includes work by photo-bloggers Scott Schuman and Garance Doré. A must-visit for die-hard romantics and fans of enduring visuals.

Gender Bender bow tie, $598, by Carrie K.

The Love Story by Lace, $5,000, by TianPo Jewellery.

THE PERFECT MEMENTO

> In all honesty, when we first heard that Marina Bay Sands was going to introduce its very own line of jewellery, the first words that hit our heads were: Touristy and tacky. So imagine our surprise when we saw the collection. Designed by Rosaline H Liang of contemporary jewellery label Rosaline Jewelry, the collections are intelligent, whimsical and well-executed. That will teach us to judge before seeing.

Little Bow Peep

Forget Lady Gaga and Katy Perry's penchant for outré bows. As these baubles show, it's time to ditch the kitsch for a more sophisticated – yet no less playful – feel.

A NEW FACE

^ "I have been very selective about aligning myself with brands. I love the fact that TAG Heuer challenges the rules and thinks outside the box and I'm honoured to be associated with such an iconic and forward-thinking brand," says Cameron Diaz at BaselWorld 2012. The Hollywood A-lister joins long-time friend Leonardo DiCaprio as TAG Heuer's brand ambassador and will be the new face of its Link Lady collection.
